POLITICAL HANDBOARDS

A contemporary in a recent issue said: "Every primary election serves as a sign board to the political observer. * * * The vote cast in the recent primary can be readily checked as to its full meaning. It is the hand board that is to guide those who are seeking political preferment next year and we all should profit by its lessons."

It would require a Sam Blythe or a Mark Sullivan to do justice to such a subject but the issues in the recent campaign were so clean cut and apparent that almost anybody can see what they may not be able to express. From the top of the ticket to the bottom it was affected by the issues of standpatism, independent factions, prohibition, labor and a dash of Gleasonism here and there, not forgetting the ruthless sacrifice of less desirable candidates of one or the other elements. While the contest for delegates to the national convention was affected more or less by all of these factors. Spoul preference and Wood influence were very apparent.

In the delegate contest the voter's insistence that he be allowed a voice in the selection of the president was the principal factor. Scott and Gaffney running unpledged, were both defeated although in the latter's case his political friends stuck to him with a loyalty and undivided allegiance that Mr. Scott may be proud of. Many candidates for the delegateship under-estimated the popularity of Governor Sproul and General Wood as presidential timber. Major Boal was popular from the start on the Wood platform and when his manager took up the dual platform of Sproul and Wood it spelled victory at once although it did alienate from him some of the pronounced Wood vote which went to the out and out Wood candidate, Mr. E. G. Boose of DuBois. The real surprise of the delegate contest to many was the wonderful vote given Captain Melville Gillette of McKean county. Previous to the campaign no one in Clearfield county knew Mr. Gillette. His strong personality won for him many staunch supporters and in his rounds of the district he found so much Sproul and Wood sentiment that he decided that the people of his district wanted either of these two men. He acted in accordance with what he found to be the voter's choice and was endorsed by a majority of them. The Wood vote is seen in the marvelous run of E. G. Boose in this county. Labor too, had its inning in Clearfield county where it rolled up a vote of 1236 votes for Donaldson, the labor candidate. Gaffney was shamefully treated by his friends in Clearfield and Center counties. The Center county defection from Gaffney is easily understood. Having two strong home candidates, Center county voters stuck to them. In Clearfield county, however, Mr. Gaffney ran 600 behind his running mate.

Not "every prophet is without honor in his own country" or Evan J. Jones would not be the nominee for congress. McKean county stood nobly by Mr. Jones and Clearfield county did well by him considering the combination against him. The labor vote, the wet vote and the apathy of the local organization are responsible for the large vote given Minns, his opponent. Here we have a peculiar combination which is right in line with the old adage that "politics make strange bedfellows." For the first time in the history of local politics labor played right into the hands of the political bosses who for some reason were not strong for Jones. We are inclined to believe that labor does not look deep enough into politics before making endorsements.

The nomination of Phillips, (DeHass and Miller for the legislature was a combination labor, dry and independent victory. All are classed as eminently fair to labor. All received fine support from the dry element in this county. All received the support of those who were opposed to the Pidgeon-Reay lineup backed by Gleason.

These are the salient points in the recent primary. What do the sign boards say?

The Whole Secret of A Better Tire

Simply a Matter of the Maker's Policies

This you will realize—once you try a Brunswick—that a super-tire is possible only when the name certifies that the maker is following the highest standards.

For tire making is chiefly a matter of standards and policies—care plus care. Any maker can build a good tire if he cares to pay perfection's price.

All men know Brunswick standards, for Brunswick products have been famous for 74 years.

Formulas, failures and standards vary vastly in cost. Misconceptions, plus and minus are a matter of expense. And these variations affect endurance. It costs with the maker how far he wishes to go—how much he can afford to give.

For there are no secrets for patients to hold one back.

To ascertain what each maker offers one must analyze and test some 200 tires—as our laboratories have done.

Then it's a matter of combining the best features and building according to the highest standards.

Once you try a Brunswick you will understand how we have built around three, regardless of factory expense.

Yet Brunswick Tires cost you the same as other like-type tires. Our saving is on selling cost, through our nation-wide organization.

We realize that you expect more from Brunswicks, and we assure you that you get it. ONE Brunswick will tell you the story.

And then you'll want ALL Brunswicks. No other tire, you'll agree, gives so much for your money.

Build up for the Spring Attack! Put the body in condition for a long season of activity. The reason for this is that during the wintertime, shut up windows, doors, eating too much meat and too little green vegetables, one heaps fuel into the system which is not burned up and one's organs remain to poison the system—a clogging up of the circulation—with inactive liver and kidneys. Time to put your liver in order!

For an invigorating tonic which will clarify the blood, put new life in the body, sparkle to the eyes, and a wholesome skin, nothing does so well as an herbal extract made from Blood and Stone root, Oregon grape root and Wild Cherry bark, which has been sold for the past fifty years as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By reason of the nerves feeding on the blood, when the blood is pure the nerves feel the effect, and neuralgia or other nerve pains disappear because such pain is the cry of the starved nerves for food.

Burnham, Pa.—"I am writing this in regard to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and am willing to have it published. My mother used the 'Discovery' constantly and would not be without it. It was a reconstructive tonic and the family always depended on it. I think Dr. Pierce's medicines far exceed all others, and hope those who are suffering will turn to him for aid."—Mrs. W. Ramsey.

Le Roy, Pa.—"Nine years ago I had asthma and bronchial trouble. I doctored with two different doctors, six months, but they did not help me. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I was very weak and only weighed 80 lbs. I could not sleep and coughed most all night. Before I had had my first bottle I felt stronger, and by the time I had taken ten bottles I weighed 125 lbs. and was well, and the trouble has never returned."—Mrs. Glen Bailey.

If Kidneys And Bladder Bother

Take a glass of salts to flush out your kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with soda, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effect whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent, lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

The House of Whispers

By William Johnston Illustrations by Irwin Myers

know, I believe, who I am?"

"You are Barbara's sister," I replied.

"That's why I came," she cried, "for Barbara's sake. I have come to plead with you for her."

"To plead with me—for her?" I echoed in astonishment.

"Yes," she cried passionately. "She's young. She's little more than a child. She did not realize what she was doing. You must not let anyone know you even know her. You must not, never tell."

"No, or tell what?" I answered non-committally.

She answered with a convulsive sob. I thought for a little that she was going to break down completely. Her manner and the pallor of her face attracted the attention of the keeper who was in the room with us, and he started forward as if expecting her to fall in a faint. Resolutely she pushed herself together and went on in rather tones.

"Oh, I know all about it. I know that she is completely fascinated by you. I know that she has been meeting you in the park. I know that she has lunched with you at the Astor. She hesitated and her face crimsoned. 'I know that she has even asked you in your rooms late at night. Oh, please, please, I beg of you, if there is a spark of manhood in you, do not take advantage of a silly girl's weakness. Please help me protect my little sister's name; promise you will, won't you?'"

"Why should I?" I replied carelessly, repudiating my desire to help at once to Barbara's defense and explain how pure and honorable her conduct had been and how lofty the motive that had governed her actions. I thought I was to defend her, I realized that this might be an opportunity to learn something of Claire Bradford's associates, and I determined to make the most of it. How else could she know of all my meetings with Barbara unless she was in league with the persons who had been haunting me shadowed? How the knowledge that Barbara had been in my apartment could have come to her was a mystery beyond me. I would have sworn that that was a secret sacred to our two selves.

"Listen to me," she commanded, speaking in low tones. "Barbara is my baby sister, innocent of the ways of the world. I must save her from herself, and her heedlessness. Never, never, if I can help it, shall she suffer the agony and shame and disgrace that I have known. Years ago I, just as she is now, became infatuated with a man far below me in the social scale. He, too, was a criminal."

I sniffed indignantly at the "he," but she paid no attention.

"I ran away from school and married him and learned too late that he was a wife and child abductor. All the life, ever since, that terrible thing has followed me. It's like a specter—"

"You Cannot Deny That You Were in My Apartment Last Night."

rising to confront me. Even if I have to kill you, I am going to save my little sister from following in my steps."

"Where is Gaston Maurice now?" I asked. "Have you seen him recently?"

She gasped and shuddered, looking at me incredulously.

"Yes," she breathed excitedly, "who are you? How do you know his name?"

"Never mind how I know it," I replied. "What I want to know is where he is now? When did you see him last?"

"Not for years—not since long before my father's death—not since the marriage was annulled."

"No, nor heard from him," I persisted. "No, nor heard from him," she hesitated, "unless—"

"Unless what?" I insisted, as she stopped abruptly.

"I can't tell you," she said finally. "I don't know. They must have come from him, from someone that knew the letters."

"What letters? Tell me about them."

"I can't tell what I don't know. I haven't the least idea where Gaston Maurice is. I had hoped he was dead, but no. Yet he can't be. I have had anonymous letters threatening him. They must have come from him."

or from someone whom he told of our marriage? How else could they know?

Her distress was so real and her manner so convincing that I decided that she must be telling the truth.

"Well," said I, "if you cannot tell me where to find Gaston Maurice there is one thing that you can tell me."

"What is that?"

"Why did you visit my apartment late last night? Why did you put that revolver in my dresser?"

"Revolver," she queried in a puzzled tone, "what revolver?"

"The revolver with which Miss Lutan was killed."

She eyed me in shocked surprise.

"Why do you say this to me? I never saw the revolver."

"You cannot deny that you were in my apartment last night?"

"But the revolver," she protested.

"What do you mean by that? I know nothing of any revolver."

"Last night, a few minutes after Miss Lutan was murdered," I said sternly, "some man or woman entered my rooms and placed a revolver with one chamber discharged in the dresser in my bedroom. It was evidently placed there for the purpose of throwing suspicion on me, of making me out the murderer. The detectives found it there and arrested me. If you did not enter my apartment to hide the revolver, why then were you there?"

"I knew nothing about the murder," she answered irrelevantly, "until this morning—until I read about it in the papers."

"What about Wick?" I hurried at her. "Didn't Wick tell you?"

"Wick," she repeated in a puzzled way. "Oh, Mr. Wick, the superintendent. No, I have not seen him for several days."

"Did you do nothing yesterday at his direction?"

"How absurd! Of course not."

"Why, then, did you go into my rooms?"

She looked at me with a frightened face, and her manner became more confused.

"I really believe you are trying to implicate me in your crime," she ejaculated. "It's absurd for you to try to question me this way."

"Lady," interrupted the keeper, "you'll have to be going now. Time's up."

"Promise me," she begged hastily in an undertone, as she departed, "whenever you think about me, you'll keep my sister out of it."

"I'll promise nothing, unless you confess everything," I repeated, determined if I could, to drag her secret from her, even though I, as well as she, was eager to shield Barbara's name.

Claire Bradford's attitude, I must confess, puzzled me greatly. Her denial that she had seen the revolver, or that she had been working in conjunction with Wick seemed to ring true, and I was also inclined to believe her statement that she knew nothing of her former husband's present whereabouts. While I was pondering over her statements, my cell door opened and Gorman was let in.

"Well, young fellow," he said, "this shanting business didn't turn out exactly the way we expected it to, did it?"

"You don't think I'm guilty, do you?"

I waited in agony for his answer. If he failed me, there was no one absolutely no one, to whom I could turn.

"It looks like you were guilty from reading the morning papers," he answered with a grin. "But I don't believe all I read. They've made out a strong case against you, though."

"I didn't do it!" I cried passionately.

"If you didn't, who did?"

"It must have been Mr. Wick."

"There you go, jumping at conclusions. Why not Claire Bradford?"

"Why do you mention her? Do you suspect her?"

"If she didn't do it, why did she come down here to see you?"

"How did you know she was here?"

"I was watching you all the time you were talking to her."

"But how did you know who she was?"

"I saw the other one this morning. They look alike."

"But how did you know which sister it was?"

"You didn't seem to get along well enough in your talk for it to be Barbara," he answered with another grin.

It had not been my intention to reveal even to him Claire Bradford's second visit to my apartment, but I saw how foolish it would be of me to attempt to deceive or to withhold any information from such a shrewd observer.

Without reserve and with the utmost detail I proceeded to relate everything that had happened since I had seen him the afternoon before. I told of my discovery of the secret passage in my room and of the blind passageway into which it apparently led, of Barbara's having made the

Her Grandma Used Sage Tea To Darken Her Hair.

Grandmother kept her hair beautiful. A well-known downtown druggist fully darkened, glossy and attractive hair. Wyeth's Sage Tea and Syrup, a natural and healthy hair conditioner, is naturally and evenly applied. Whenever her hair took on that fall, thin, or faded appearance, the druggist told her to use, too. You simple mixture was applied with your fingers, a comb or soft brush and it took on a rich, dark, glossy, and healthy appearance. By using this mixture, the hair disappears; after an application of two or three times, the hair is restored to its natural color and looks glossy and healthy. Says Mrs. Staples of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Taunton, Mass.—"I could not eat or sleep for six months, had fainting spells and could not walk without help for three months, caused by female trouble. My cousin, who was a doctor, told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me greatly. Then during the change of life I used the same remedy. I am seventy years old now and am able to do my own housework and walk one mile to church every Sunday morning and evening. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends having the same troubles as I had. Your remedy is the best on earth. I cannot find words to express my gratitude to it."—Mrs. SUSAN C. STAPLES, 127 B School St., Taunton, Mass.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and illness. It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, such as displacements, inflammation, and ulceration. Why don't you try it?

RESPECTED SANBORN
RESIDENT PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Susan Cornell, member of one of the pioneer families of the Sanborn section and mother of ex-County Treasurer A. L. Kline and Hugh J. Kline of Clearfield, passed away at the home of her daughter Mrs. Daniel Kline at Sanborn on Thursday, May 20, 1920 at the advanced age of 92 years, 6 months and 19 days.

The deceased was the daughter of Robert and Margaret Carson, among the original settlers of that section of Clearfield county and was born December 1st, 1827. Her entire life was spent in that community.

In 1847 she was united in marriage with Nicholas Kline, also a member of another well known pioneer family in that section. To this union was born the following children: Annie deceased; A. L. Kline, of Clearfield; Robert, deceased; Hugh J., of Clearfield; Letitia, wife of Daniel Kline and James N., both of Sanborn.

Her husband died in 1870 and five years later she married Israel Cornell. To this union was born Frank, deceased, and John Cornell of Iremus.

Mrs. Cornell was one of that type of rugged pioneer American women which assisted so greatly in developing and making this glorious country what it is today. She was ever the loving wife and devoted mother, whose every thought and act was for the welfare of her home and those she loved. She was a devout Christian woman and an earnest conscientious member of the United Brethren church.

In addition to the surviving children noted above she is survived by twenty-seven grand children and twenty-eight great grandchildren. One sister Mrs. Barbara Ellen Hallman also survives her.

The funeral was held from the home of her daughter at Sanborn on Sunday afternoon last, Rev. Oaks of the U. B. church conducting the services. Interment was made in Sanborn cemetery.

HOT WATER FOR SICK HEADACHES

Tells why everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it before breakfast.

Tells why everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it before breakfast.

Headaches are caused by auto-intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood excite the heart which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head, producing violent, throbbing pain and distress called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilid, aspirin or the bromides which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drunk before breakfast will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache, but will cleanse, purify and freshen the alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar.

If you aren't feeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up with bad taste, foul breath or have colds, indigestion, biliousness, constipation or sour, acid stomach, begin the phosphate hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

DISCUSSES FOURFOLD PLAN

National Commander D'Olier Advises That Prompt Action Is Necessary to Get Results.

Attempts of opponents of the American Legion's fourfold optional compensation plan to divert attention from the main issue by embroiling congress in a dispute over different revenue-producing schemes, playing off advocates of various plans against one another, are exposed by Franklin D'Olier, national commander of the legion, in a signed article in a recent issue of the American Legion Weekly. He writes: "The American Legion's fight for the fourfold optional compensation plan has entered a new phase."

"The opposition, defeated in its attempt to invoke popular sentiment against the measure itself, has turned from the direct to the indirect method of attack. The new strategy is to strike the bill, through the instrument of a fomented controversy over methods of money raising."

"Already the attempt is being made to divert attention from the bill to the question of the means by which the money shall be raised to carry out its provisions. If the advocates of different revenue-producing schemes can be played off against one another the congress embroiled in a dispute over money raising, in which the bill, occupying the role of innocent bystander, shall receive a mortal blow, this design will have succeeded."

"The fourfold plan has withstood the closest scrutiny. The economic soundness of the land settlement, home aid and vocational training options and the fact that the fourth option can be paid automatically to the dependents of those who died, to all disabled and to those needing assistance, makes the plan the best solution of the problem of beneficial legislation."

"A majority of congress favor the bill. Congress, however, begins its summer vacation soon. Unless the bill is passed before that adjournment, the chances of its ultimate passage will be greatly impaired and the future of all ex-service beneficial legislation injuriously affected. National headquarters has pressed the legion's case with all the vigor it can command and has received admirable support from the membership. It is imperative that those efforts be sustained. State departments, posts and individuals throughout the country should continue to impress upon their senators and congressmen that the bill should be passed before adjournment and the question of money raising not be permitted to obstruct the real issue."

BACK TO EARTH WITH BUMP

Oregon and Wyoming Land Fiascos Not Creditable to Nation, Says Legion Weekly.

The Oregon and Wyoming land fiascos, states a writer in The American Legion Weekly, are not exactly creditable to a nation that prides itself, above all else, on its business efficiency. The machinery jammed somewhere—what machinery there was—for when farms go to 75 men out of 170,000, who exhibit enough interest to write to Washington about the land, then it is evident too few wheels are grinding.

To the returning soldier his familiar America took on the aspect of an El Dorado. He reapproached it with something of the practical idealism of the homeward-bound. To be sure, he knew its streets were not gold paved, but he recollected how he had always heard it was the land of opportunity and how, from boyhood, he had seen people taking advantage of the opportunity. And to whom would America quicker extend the helping hand than her home-coming defenders?

He had been shaken out of a rut in which he probably would have lived and died but for the war's coming. Being out, he determined not to drop back. He heard the call of the land.

Picture the feelings, then, of some 800 of these pioneers who traveled to Wyoming only to find that less than a tenth of them could get the land they sought. Picture the feelings of the men who went to Oregon to be shown desolate tracts that reminded of the roughest, thorniest passes of the Argentine.

The land and home features of the legion's four-fold compensation plan cannot make the desert bloom, nor can they divide government sections so as to make room for all comers. But they can see to it that the machinery is adequate to give all land-loving ex-service men opportunity to establish their homes wherever they want them; and to prevent such costly and disappointing stampedes as Oregon and Wyoming just have witnessed.

Mrs. James Pletcher returned from Tyrone yesterday, where she was called on account of the death of her aunt, Mrs. Waite.

Big Value in Tires for The Smaller Cars

Back of the manufacture of Goodyear Tires for the smaller cars is the same purpose to supply high value in the product that is behind the manufacture of the Goodyear Tires that equip the most expensive automobiles built.

This purpose is expressed by the enormous resources, extraordinary skill and scrupulous care applied to the manufacture of Goodyear Tires in the largest tire factory in the world devoted solely to the 30x3-, 30x3½-, and 31x4-inch sizes.

The effect of this endeavor is noted in the fact that last year more cars using these sizes were factory-equipped with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

It is also noted in the fact that if you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, or other car requiring one of the sizes mentioned, you can secure Goodyear Tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes at the nearest Goodyear Service Station.

30x3½ Goodyear Double-Cure
Fabric, All-Weather Tread..... $23.50

30x3½ Goodyear Single-Cure

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are thick, strong tubes that reinforce casings properly. Why risk a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30x3½ size in water—$4.50 proof bag.

THE ATLANTIC REFINING COMPANY

THE FLYER

By T. B. ALDERSON

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

No one in the village could understand why pretty Althea Dorrance favored Gale Marston as a sweetheart, least of all her cross-grained, parsimonious, yet wealthy grandfather. He allowed her no visitors, and when he found that she was meeting Gale clandestinely at the rear garden gate, he surprised the romantic duo and gave Gale a severe dressing down.

"If I find you skulking about my premises again," declared the drastic old tyro, "I'll get out my shotgun! You'd better do something in the world before you think of getting married."

The taunt cut deep. To his own way of thinking, Gale averaged pretty well for a young man of twenty-two. He had worked up from entry clerk to bookkeeper, was receiving quite a liberal salary, lived respectably, dressed well and loved Althea, which was the crux of the situation. And Althea loved him in return—that was the joy that drove away the de-pair caused by the cruel and cheerless opposition of a crusty, mean-souled old man.

"Do something in the world, eh?" commended Gale with himself, as he saw Althea driven, rather than led, into the house by her tyrannical relative, in tears. "What does he mean? I'm headed right in a business way and they elected me president of the Merchants' club last week. They gave me a great sendoff in the papers, too. Maybe the old curmudgeon is thinking of Darcy Moore, who invented a new collar button and made a lot out of it. Or that favorite of his, Ben Junkin. I'll bet that's it! Junkin has become a professional aviator. Mr. Marston tried to interest Althea in Junkin, but she won't have it. Yes, he's hinting at what a superior fellow Junkin is. His stunts down at the aviation training field make the old man think he's won fame and is worthy of winning Althea! Well, it's given me an idea."

The young man's idea was soon put into execution. He decided to enter to the belief that to amount to anything in the world a fellow must become a hero, or a money success, attain notoriety and get to be looked upon as "somebody." The aviation field seemed sensational and popular. They were offering to teach aspirants the way to fly at the field, ten miles distant, with a view to training recruits for the army and postal service in the future. Gale got a leave of absence of two days and went down to Ardmore.

Ben Junkin was there, the king of the roost, so to speak. He was so filled with a sense of his own importance, that he feigned great interest in Dale's frankly expressed aspiration to become an "ace." He flattered the hopes of the novice and then took one of the expert aviators aside.

"See here, Jim," he said confidentially, "I want you to put that fellow through the paces. He's got the flying bug. Encourage him. Wear him out with the tests."

"All right," acceded the other. Gale Marston never forgot the day he put in with these practical jokers. They took him to a building where a tub-like contrivance wheeled him around on his feet at lightning speed. This he was told was done to test any tendency towards dizziness. Then he was swung aloft on one foot to discover any tendency towards a rush of blood to the head.

When Jim took him up in the air he gave the propellers a tip which sent the victim rolling to the bottom of the pit. Then he made a sharp dive with the machine, yelling out, "Ough! I've lost control!" He allowed the airship to strike the ground nose first, and Gale was sent whirling twenty feet across the field. By this time Gale began to suspect horseplay. He righted himself pluckily, sat on the ground, lit a cigarette and coolly remarked:

"Fine exercise, eh?" He was bruised, he had been frightfully scared, he was through with aerobatics, but Gale displayed sheer pluck to the last and, jumping from the field, decided that he would thereafter devote his energies distinctly to winning Althea exclusively. No more trucking to the prejudices or favoritism of the whimsical Josiah Dorrance! He got word to Althea and had a stolen interview with her.

A few evenings later Ben Junkin was chuckling over "the course of sprouts" they had put Gale through. He narrated its incidents to Mr. Dorrance.

"The fellow showed pluck and nerve, I will admit," he observed, "but he will never be a flyer."

"What's that, now?" exclaimed the old man as the clucking of an automobile sounded in the lane behind the house.

He looked into the next room where he had left Althea quietly sewing a few minutes previous. She was not there. He dashed out through the garden. An auto was just speeding down the lane and he caught sight of two figures in its seat as it flashed around a lighted street corner. White and gasping, he dashed into the presence of Ben Junkin.

"You blazed that Gale Marston was no flyer!" he blurted out. "Well, he's stolen a march on me. He's not fast enough with Althea!"

Miss Gertrude Ben will leave tomorrow for Pittsburgh, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. Robert A. Alderson.

The Heaviest Expense of Washday —what is it?

Today the housewife knows that the actual cost of washing in the home—the expenditure for fuel, soaps, starch, perhaps for a laundress—is the smallest item.

She is beginning to realize that she herself pays—and dearly. The frantic rush of washday—the all-too-real burden of washing, rinsing, and wringing—the fatiguing hours spent over the ironing board—all exact a price which the modern woman knows she cannot, in justice to herself and her family, afford to pay. The real drain is not upon her purse, but upon her person.

Our modern Family Laundry Service means true washday economy for you. Your family washing is cleansed to meet the standards of the most particular, your hat pieces are beautifully ironed, only the lighter articles, dainty blouses and lingerie, are left for you to finish.

It would be the poorest sort of economy to age and worry yourself to the point of illness, when right at hand—as near to you as your telephone—is this service of ours that is so specially fitted to take over your domestic problems. We do all the heavy washing, and much of the ironing, leaving to you only the finishing of the lighter pieces.

Telephone today, and find freedom from strain and expense of the home washday. Our driver will call for your family bundle.

PART OF LEVER LAW VOID SAYS JUDGE ANDERSON

QUASHES SEVERAL COUNTS IN CHARGE
OF CONSPIRACY AGAINST MINERS
AND OPERATORS IN THE WEST

STRIKE SECTION IS HELD VALID

INDIANAPOLIS, May 26—Declaring sections 1 and 26 of the Lever law unconstitutional Federal Judge A. B. Anderson today sustained the motion to quash indictments charging 125 coal miners and operators with violation of this law. The court upheld the constitutionality of section 9 however, and overruled a motion to quash five counts returned under it.

Under Judge Anderson's ruling the charges will be dismissed but a majority of the 18 counts will be pressed. Section nine was specifically upheld by Judge Anderson in which five counts were based and which forbade calling of strikes. Section 4 and 26 are similar but the court held these to be void.

POLITICAL HANDBOARDS

A contemporary in a recent issue said: "Every primary election serves as a sign board to the political observer. * * * The vote cast in the recent primary can be readily checked as to its full meaning. It is the hand board that is to guide those who are seeking political preferment next year and we all should profit by its lessons."

It would require a Sam Blythe or a Mark Sullivan to do justice to such a subject but the issues in the recent campaign were so clean cut and apparent that almost anybody can see what they may not be able to express. From the top of the ticket to the bottom it was affected by the issues of standpatism, independent factions, prohibition, labor and a dash of Gleasonism here and there, not forgetting the ruthless sacrifice of less desirable candidates of one or the other elements. While the contest for delegates to the national convention was affected more or less by all of these factors. Spoul preference and Wood influence were very apparent.

In the delegate contest the voter's responsible for the large vote given Minns, his opponent. Here we have a peculiar combination which is right in line with the old adage that "politics make strange bedfellows." For the first time in the history of local politics labor played right into the hands of the political bosses who for some reason were not strong for Jones. We are inclined to believe that labor does not look deep enough into politics before making endorsements.

The nomination of Phillips, (De-Hass and Miller for the legislature was a combination labor, dry and independent victory. All are classed as eminently fair to labor. All received fine support from the dry element in this county. All received the support of those who were opposed to the Pidgeon-Reay lineup backed by Gleason.

These are the salient points in the recent primary. What do the sign boards say?

The Whole Secret of A Better Tire

Simply a Matter of the Maker's Policies

This you will realize—once you try a Brunswick—that a super-tire is possible only when the name certifies that the maker is following the highest standards.

For tire making is chiefly a matter of standards and policies—care plus care. Any maker can build a good tire if he cares to pay perfection's price.

All men know Brunswick standards, for Brunswick products have been famous for 74 years.

Formulas, factories and standards vary vastly in cost. Shortcomings, plus and minus are a matter of expense. And these variations affect endurance. It costs with the maker how far he wishes to go—how much he can afford to give.

For there are no secrets for patients to hold one back.

To ascertain what each maker offers one must analyze and test some 200 tires—as our laboratories have done.

Then it's a matter of combining the best features and building according to the highest standards.

Once you try a Brunswick you will understand how we have built around three, regardless of factory expense.

Yet Brunswick Tires cost you the same as other like-type tires. Our saving is on selling cost, through our nation-wide organization.

We realize that you expect more from Brunswicks, and we assure you that you get it. ONE Brunswick will tell you the story.

And then you'll want ALL Brunswicks. No other tire, you'll agree, gives so much for your money.

Build up for the Spring Attack! Put the body in condition for a long season of activity. The reason for this is that during the winter, shut up windows, doors, eating too much meat and too little green vegetables, one heaps fuel into the system which is not burned up and one's organs remain to poison the system—a clogging up of the circulation—with inactive liver and kidneys. Time to put your liver in order!

For an invigorating tonic which will clarify the blood, put new life in the body, sparkle to the eyes, and a wholesome skin, nothing does so well as an herbal extract made from Blood and Stone root, Oregon grape root and Wild Cherry bark, which has been sold for the past fifty years as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By reason of the nerves feeding on the blood, when the blood is pure the nerves feel the effect, and neuralgia or other nerve pains disappear because such pain is the cry of the starved nerves for food.

Burnham, Pa.—"I am writing this in regard to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and am willing to have it published. My mother used the 'Discovery' constantly and would not be without it. It was a reconstructive tonic and the family always depended on it. I think Dr. Pierce's medicines far exceed all others, and hope those who are suffering will turn to him for aid."—Mrs. W. Burnham.

Le Roy, Pa.—"Nine years ago I had asthma and bronchial trouble. I doctored with two different doctors, six months, but they did not help me. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I was very weak and only weighed 80 lbs. I could not sleep and coughed most all night. Before I had had ten bottles I felt stronger, and by the time I had taken ten bottles I weighed 125 lbs. and was well, and the trouble has never returned."—Mrs. Glen Bailey.

A COMMUNICATION

It takes considerable time and expense to plant a lawn with evergreens and different specimen shade trees.

The work of establishing beautiful streets and lawns with trees is quite an expense in itself, let alone the care of the trees after they have ones taken root and start to make new growth, so as to insure oneself of good hardy trees, considerable attention must be given the trees during the first several years of their growth, and as the public benefits by any and all such trees planted, each and every individual should encourage the planting of trees wherever possible and to help protect them in the earlier stages of their growth, for at least eight or ten years after the trees have been planted to insure beautiful streets and lawns as found in most any city or town where protection is given those who go to the expense of planting trees.

Within the last few weeks I have had to replace three Norway maples and two good sized Norway spruces on my lawn facing Punxsutawney avenue. The trees in question being literally torn out of the ground and thrown on the sidewalk. Only Saturday night the 22nd inst., a Norway maple (which would take from two to three good strong fellows to pull from the ground) was pulled out of root and thrown across the sidewalk.

Now this kind of work surely benefits no one, and should be stopped at once. I want to be pleasant with the three fellows who have been making a practice of destroying my trees, but if this thing happens again, I surely shall take the proper steps to make this practice with those fellows the most expensive to them that the law shall permit.

Help protect the trees, not destroy them.

If Kidneys And Bladder Bother

Take a glass of salts to flush out your kidneys and neutralize irritating acids

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with bicarbonate, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effect whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent, lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

know, I believe, who I am?"

"You are Barbara's sister," I replied.

"That's why I came," she cried, "for Barbara's sake. I have come to plead with you for her."

"To plead with me—for her?" I echoed in astonishment.

"Yes," she cried passionately. "She's young. She's little more than a child. She did not realize what she was doing. You must not let anyone know you even know her. You must not, never tell."

"No, or tell what?" I answered non-committally.

She answered with a convulsive sob. I thought for a little that she was going to break down completely. Her manner and the pallor of her face attracted the attention of the keeper who was in the room with us, and he started forward as if expecting her to fall in a faint. Resolutely she pushed herself together and went on in a hoarse voice.

"Oh, I know all about it. I know that she is completely fascinated by you. I know that she has been meeting you in the park. I know that she has lunched with you at the Astor. She hesitated and her face crimsoned. 'I know that she has even asked you in your rooms late at night. Oh, please, please, I beg of you, if there is a spark of manhood in you, do not take advantage of a silly girl's weakness. Please help me protect my little sister's name; promise you will, won't you?'"

"Why should I?" I replied carelessly, repudiating my desire to help at once to Barbara's defense and explain how pure and honorable her conduct had been and how lofty the motive that had governed her actions. I thought I was to defend her. I realized that this might be an opportunity to learn something of Claire Bradford's associates, and I determined to make the most of it. How else could she know of all my meetings with Barbara unless she was in league with the persons who had been haunting me shadowed? How the knowledge that Barbara had been in my apartment could have come to her was a mystery beyond me. I would have sworn that that was a secret sacred to our two selves.

"Listen to me," she commanded, speaking in low tones. "Barbara is my baby sister, innocent of the ways of the world. I must save her from herself, and her heedlessness. Never, never, if I can help it, shall she suffer the agony and shame and disgrace that I have known. Years ago I, just as she is now, became infatuated with a man far below me in the social scale. He, too, was a criminal. I suffered indignantly at the 'he, too,' but she paid no attention. 'I ran away from school and married him and learned too late that he was a wife and child abductor. All the time, ever since, that terrible thing has haunted me. It's like a specter over me.'"

"You Cannot Deny That You Were in My Apartment Last Night."

rising to confront me. Even if I have to kill you, I am going to save my little sister from following in my steps."

"Where is Gaston Maurice now?" I asked. "Have you seen him recently?"

She gasped and shuddered, looking at me incredulously.

"Yes," she breathed excitedly, "who are you? How do you know his name?"

"Never mind how I know it," I replied. "What I want to know is where he is now? When did you see him last?"

"Not for years—not since long before my father's death—not since the marriage was annulled."

"No, he's dead from him," I persisted. "No, he's dead from him," she hesitated, "unless—"

"Unless what?" I insisted, as she stopped abruptly.

"I can't tell you," she said finally. "I don't know. They must have come from him, from someone that knew—the letters."

"What letters? Tell me about them."

"I can't tell what I don't know. I haven't the least idea where Gaston Maurice is. I had hoped he was dead, but he isn't. Yet he can't be. I have had anonymous letters threatening him. They must have come from him."

or from someone whom he told of our marriage? How else could they know?

Her distress was so real and her manner so convincing that I decided that she must be telling the truth.

"Well," said I, "if you cannot tell me where to find Gaston Maurice there is one thing that you can tell me."

"What is that?"

"Why did you visit my apartment late last night? Why did you put that revolver in my dresser?"

"Revolver," she queried in a puzzled tone, "what revolver?"

"The revolver with which Miss Lutan was killed."

She eyed me in shocked surprise.

"Why do you say this to me? I never saw the revolver."

"You cannot deny that you were in my apartment last night."

"But the revolver," she protested.

"What do you mean by that? I know nothing of any revolver."

"Last night, a few minutes after Miss Lutan was murdered," I said sternly, "some man or woman entered my rooms and placed a revolver with one chamber discharged in the dresser in my bedroom. It was evidently placed there for the purpose of throwing suspicion on me, of making me out the murderer. The detectives found it there and arrested me. If you did not enter my apartment to hide the revolver, why then were you there?"

"I knew nothing about the murder," she answered irrelevantly, "until this morning—until I read about it in the papers."

"What about Wick?" I hurried at her. "Didn't Wick tell you?"

"Wick," she repeated in a puzzled way. "Oh, Mr. Wick, the superintendent. No, I have not seen him for several days."

"Did you do nothing yesterday at his direction?"

"How absurd! Of course not."

"Why, then, did you go into my rooms?"

She looked at me with a frightened face, and her manner became more confused.

"I really believe you are trying to implicate me in your crime," she ejaculated. "It's absurd for you to try to question me this way."

"Lady," interrupted the keeper, "you'll have to be going now. Time's up."

"Promise me," she begged hastily in an undertone, as she departed, "whenever you think about me, you'll keep my sister out of it."

"I'll promise nothing, unless you confess everything," I repeated, determined if I could, to drag her secret from her, even though I, as well as she, was eager to shield Barbara's name.

Claire Bradford's attitude, I must confess, puzzled me greatly. Her denial that she had seen the revolver, or that she had been working in conjunction with Wick seemed to ring true, and I was also inclined to believe her statement that she knew nothing of her former husband's present whereabouts. While I was pondering over her statements, my cell door opened and Gorman was let in.

"Well, young fellow," he said, "this shanting business didn't turn out exactly the way we expected it to, did it?"

"You don't think I'm guilty, do you?"

I waited in agony for his answer. If he failed me, there was no one absolutely no one, to whom I could turn.

"It looks like you were guilty from reading the morning papers," he answered with a grin. "But I don't believe all I read. They've made out a strong case against you, though."

"I didn't do it!" I cried passionately.

"If you didn't, who did?"

"It must have been Mr. Wick."

"There you go, jumping at conclusions. Why not Claire Bradford?"

"Why do you mention her? Do you suspect her?"

"If she didn't do it, why did she come down here to see you?"

"How did you know she was here?"

"I was watching you all the time you were talking to her."

"But how did you know who she was?"

"I saw the other one this morning. They look alike."

"But how did you know which sister it was?"

"You didn't seem to get along well enough in your talk for it to be Barbara," he answered with another grin.

It had not been my intention to reveal even to him Claire Bradford's second visit to my apartment, but I saw how foolish it would be of me to attempt to deceive or to withhold any information from such a shrewd observer.

Without reserve and with the utmost detail I proceeded to relate everything that had happened since I had seen him the afternoon before. I told of my discovery of the secret passage in my room and of the blind passageway into which it apparently led, of Barbara's having made the

I am seventy years old now and am able to do my own housework and walk one mile to church every Sunday morning and evening. RESPECTED SANBORN
RESIDENT PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Susan Cornell, member of one of the pioneer families of the Sanborn section and mother of ex-County Treasurer A. L. Kline and Hugh J. Kline of Clearfield, passed away at the home of her daughter Mrs. Daniel Kline at Sanborn on Thursday, May 20, 1920 at the advanced age of 92 years, 6 months and 19 days.

The deceased was the daughter of Robert and Margaret Carson, among the original settlers of that section of Clearfield county and was born December 1st, 1827. Her entire life was spent in that community.

In 1847 she was united in marriage with Nicholas Kline, also a member of another well known pioneer family in that section. To this union was born the following children: Annie deceased; A. L. Kline, of Clearfield; Robert, deceased; Hugh J., of Clearfield; Letitia, wife of Daniel Kline and James N., both of Sanborn.

Her husband died in 1870 and five years later she married Israel Cornell. To this union was born Frank, deceased, and John Cornell of Iremus.

Mrs. Cornell was one of that type of rugged pioneer American women which assisted so greatly in developing and making this glorious country what it is today. She was ever the loving wife and devoted mother, whose every thought and act was for the welfare of her home and those she loved. She was a devout Christian woman and an earnest conscientious member of the United Brethren church.

In addition to the surviving children noted above she is survived by twenty-seven grand children and twenty-eight great grandchildren. One sister Mrs. Barbara Ellen Hallman also survives her.

The funeral was held from the home of her daughter at Sanborn on Sunday afternoon last, Rev. Oaks of the U. B. church conducting the services. Interment was made in Sanborn cemetery.

SICK HEADACHES

Tells why everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it before breakfast.

Tells why everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it before breakfast.

Headaches are caused by auto-intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood excite the heart which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head, producing violent, throbbing pain and distress called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilid, aspirin or the bromides which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drunk before breakfast will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache, but will cleanse, purify and freshen the alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar.

If you aren't feeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up with bad taste, foul breath or have colds, indigestion, biliousness, constipation or sour, acid stomach, begin the phosphate hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

DISCUSSES FOURFOLD PLAN

National Commander D'Olier Advises That Prompt Action Is Necessary to Get Results.

Attempts of opponents of the American Legion's fourfold optional compensation plan to divert attention from the main issue by embroiling congress in a dispute over different revenue-producing schemes, playing off advocates of various plans against one another, are exposed by Franklin D'Olier, national commander of the legion, in a signed article in a recent issue of the American Legion Weekly. He writes: "The American Legion's fight for the fourfold optional compensation plan has entered a new phase."

"The opposition, defeated in its attempt to invoke popular sentiment against the measure itself, has turned from the direct to the indirect method of attack. The new strategy is to strike the bill, through the instrument of a fomented controversy over methods of money raising."

"Already the attempt is being made to divert attention from the bill to the question of the means by which the money shall be raised to carry out its provisions. If the advocates of different revenue-producing schemes can be played off against one another the congress embroiled in a dispute over money raising, in which the bill, occupying the role of innocent bystander, shall receive a mortal blow, this design will have succeeded."

"The fourfold plan has withstood the closest scrutiny. The economic soundness of the land settlement, home aid and vocational training options and the fact that the fourth option can be paid automatically to the dependents of those who died, to all disabled and to those needing assistance, makes the plan the best solution of the problem of beneficial legislation."

"A majority of congress favor the bill. Congress, however, begins its summer vacation soon. Unless the bill is passed before that adjournment, the chances of its ultimate passage will be greatly impaired and the future of all ex-service beneficial legislation injuriously affected. National headquarters has pressed the legion's case with all the vigor it can command and has received admirable support from the membership. It is imperative that those efforts be sustained. State departments, posts and individuals throughout the country should continue to impress upon their senators and congressmen that the bill should be passed before adjournment and the question of money raising not be permitted to obstruct the real issue."

BACK TO EARTH WITH BUMP

Oregon and Wyoming Land Fiascos Not Creditable to Nation, Says Legion Weekly.

The Oregon and Wyoming land fiascos, states a writer in The American Legion Weekly, are not exactly creditable to a nation that prides itself, above all else, on its business efficiency. The machinery jammed somewhere—what machinery there was—for when farms go to 75 men out of 170,000, who exhibit enough interest to write to Washington about the land, then it is evident too few wheels are grinding.

To the returning soldier his familiar America took on the aspect of an El Dorado. He reapproached it with something of the practical idealism of the homeward-bound. To be sure, he knew its streets were not gold paved, but he recollected how he had always heard it was the land of opportunity and how, from boyhood, he had seen people taking advantage of the opportunity. And to whom would America quicker extend the helping hand than her home-coming defenders?

He had been shaken out of a rut in which he probably would have lived and died but for the war's coming. Being out, he determined not to drop back. He heard the call of the land.

Picture the feelings, then, of some 800 of these pioneers who traveled to Wyoming only to find that less than a tenth of them could get the land they sought. Picture the feelings of the men who went to Oregon to be shown desolate tracts that reminded of the roughest, thorniest passes of the Argentine.

The land and home features of the legion's four-fold compensation plan cannot make the desert bloom, nor can they divide government sections so as to make room for all comers. But they can see to it that the machinery is adequate to give all land-loving ex-service men opportunity to establish their homes wherever they want them; and to prevent such costly and disappointing stampedes as Oregon and Wyoming just have witnessed.

Mrs. James Pletcher returned from Tyrone yesterday, where she was called on account of the death of her aunt, Mrs. Waite.

Big Value in Tires for The Smaller Cars

Back of the manufacture of Goodyear Tires for the smaller cars is the same purpose to supply high value in the product that is behind the manufacture of the Goodyear Tires that equip the most expensive automobiles built.

This purpose is expressed by the enormous resources, extraordinary skill and scrupulous care applied to the manufacture of Goodyear Tires in the largest tire factory in the world devoted solely to the 30x3-, 30x3½-, and 31x4-inch sizes.

The effect of this endeavor is noted in the fact that last year more cars using these sizes were factory-equipped with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

It is also noted in the fact that if you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, or other car requiring one of the sizes mentioned, you can secure Goodyear Tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes at the nearest Goodyear Service Station.

30x3½ Goodyear Double-Cure $23.50
Fabric, All-Weather Tread

30x3½ Goodyear Single-Cure $21.50
Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are thick, strong tubes that reinforce casings properly. Why risk a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30x3½ size in water-proof bag. $4.50

THE ATLANTIC REFINING COMPANY

THE FLYER

By T. B. ALDERSON

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

No one in the village could understand why pretty Althea Dorrance favored Gale Marston as a sweetheart, least of all her cross-grained, parsimonious, yet wealthy grandfather. He allowed her no visitors, and when he found that she was meeting Gale clandestinely at the rear garden gate, he surprised the romantic duo and gave Gale a severe dressing down.

"If I find you skulking about my premises again," declared the drastic old tyro, "I'll get out my shotgun! You'd better do something in the world before you think of getting married."

The taunt cut deep. To his own way of thinking, Gale averaged pretty well for a young man of twenty-two. He had worked up from entry clerk to bookkeeper, was receiving quite a liberal salary, lived respectably, dressed well and loved Althea, which was the crux of the situation. And Althea loved him in return—that was the joy that drove away the de-pair caused by the cruel and cheerless opposition of a crusty, mean-souled old man.

"Do something in the world, eh?" commended Gale with himself, as he saw Althea driven, rather than led, into the house by her tyrannical relative, in tears. "What does he mean? I'm headed right in a business way and they elected me president of the Merchants' club last week. They gave me a great sendoff in the papers, too. Maybe the old curmudgeon is thinking of Darcy Moore, who invented a new collar button and made a lot out of it. Or that favorite of his, Ben Junkin. I'll bet that's it! Junkin has become a professional aviator. Mr. Marston tried to interest Althea in Junkin, but she won't have it. Yes, he's hinting at what a superior fellow Junkin is. His stunts down at the aviation training field make the old man think he's won fame and is worthy of winning Althea! Well, it's given me an idea."

The young man's idea was soon put into execution. He decided to enter to the belief that to amount to anything in the world a fellow must become a hero, or a money success, attain notoriety and get to be looked upon as "somebody." The aviation field seemed sensational and popular. They were offering to teach aspirants the way to fly at the field, ten miles distant, with a view to training recruits for the army and postal service in the future. Gale got a leave of absence of two days and went down to Ardmore.

Ben Junkin was there, the king of the roost, so to speak. He was so filled with a sense of his own importance, that he feigned great interest in Dale's frankly expressed aspiration to become an "ace." He flattered the hopes of the novice and then took one of the expert aviators aside.

"See here, Jim," he said confidentially, "I want you to put that fellow through the paces. He's got the flying bug. Encourage him. Wear him out with the tests."

"All right," acceded the other. Gale Marston never forgot the day he put in with these practical jokers. They took him to a building where a tub-like contrivance wheeled him around on his feet at lightning speed. This he was told was done to test any tendency towards dizziness. Then he was swung aloft on one foot to discover any tendency towards a rush of blood to the head.

When Jim took him up in the air he gave the propellers a tip which sent the victim rolling to the bottom of the pit. Then he made a sharp dive with the machine, yelling out, "Ough! I've lost control!" He allowed the airship to strike the ground nose first, and Gale was sent whirling twenty feet across the field. By this time Gale began to suspect horseplay. He righted himself pluckily, sat on the ground, lit a cigarette and coolly remarked:

"Time exercise, eh?" He was bruised, he had been frightfully scared, he was through with aerobatics, but Gale displayed sheer pluck to the last and, jumping from the field, decided that he would thereafter devote his energies distinctly to winning Althea exclusively. No more trucking to the prejudices or favoritism of the whimsical Josiah Dorrance! He got word to Althea and had a stolen interview with her.

A few evenings later Ben Junkin was chuckling over "the course of sprouts" they had put Gale through. He narrated its incidents to Mr. Dorrance.

"The fellow showed pluck and nerve, I will admit," he observed, "but he will never be a flyer."

"What's that, now?" exclaimed the old man as the clucking of an automobile sputtered in the lane behind the house.

He looked into the next room where he had left Althea quietly sewing a few minutes previous. She was not there. He dashed out through the garden. An auto was just speeding down the lane and he caught sight of two figures in its seat as it flashed around a lighted street corner. White and gasping, he dashed into the presence of Ben Junkin.

"You blazed that Gale Marston was no flyer," he blurted out. "Well, he's stolen a march on me. He's not fast enough with Althea."

Miss Gertrude Ben will leave tomorrow for Pittsburgh, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. Robert A. Alderson.

The Heaviest Expense of Washday —what is it?

Today the housewife knows that the actual cost of washing in the home—the expenditure for fuel, soaps, starch, perhaps for a laundress—is the smallest item.

She is beginning to realize that she herself pays—and dearly. The frantic rush of washday—the all-too-real burden of washing, rinsing, and wringing—the fatiguing hours spent over the ironing board—all exact a price which the modern woman knows she cannot, in justice to herself and her family, afford to pay. The real drain is not upon her purse, but upon her person.

Our modern Family Laundry Service means true washday economy for you. Your family washing is cleansed to meet the standards of the most particular, your hat pieces are beautifully ironed, only the lighter articles, dainty blouses and lingerie, are left for you to finish.

It would be the poorest sort of economy to age and worry yourself to the point of illness, when right at hand—as near to you as your telephone—is this service of ours that is so specially fitted to take over your domestic problems. We do all the heavy washing, and much of the ironing, leaving to you only the finishing of the lighter pieces.

Telephone today, and find freedom from strain and expense of the home washday. Our driver will call for your family bundle.
